

Kentucky Wins Fourth Consecutive Drill Meet Held by Pershing Rifles

General Pershing Presents
Trophy Cups to Winning Companies

INDIVIDUAL DRILL
IS WON BY BULLOCK

Ohio State Team Is Second in the Competition;
Illinois Third

Performing before General John J. Pershing, the University of Kentucky won the Pershing Rifle drill competition for the fourth consecutive time last Friday at Columbus, Ohio. Harry Bullock, a sophomore of the University, won the individual competitive drill.

Two thousand persons witnessed the exhibition at the Fair Grounds Coliseum. General Pershing, who founded the organization 40 years ago, presented the trophy cups to the winning companies.

Ohio State University's team was second, the University of Illinois was third, and the Universities of Dayton, Cincinnati, and Indiana placed in that order.

The University of Kentucky unit journeyed to Columbus in a convoy of 13 motor cars belonging to the various cadets and officers affiliated with the unit. The convoy was met by an escort at the city limits of Columbus and escorted to their destination. While at Columbus the University cadets were the guests of the Ohio State University unit.

This is the organization's first year under their first master, Captain I. C. Scudder. Captain Scudder was transferred here last fall to replace Warrant Officer George Knight, who was transferred. The unit is under the command of Cadet First Lieutenant Oscar Reuter, a senior in the College of Engineering.

Cadet Harry Bullock, Lexington, a sophomore in the College of Arts and Science, won the individual competitive drill over the representatives of all the units in the Fifth Corps area. The Zouaves, honorary military organization at Purdue University, gave a special exhibition for the visiting units and their officers.

The University unit was entertained with a dance Saturday night at Ohio State University. They returned to Lexington via motor cars Sunday.

Pershing Rifles was founded by Gen. J. J. Pershing at the University of Nebraska 40 years ago. General Pershing, then Lieutenant Pershing, was professor of military science and tactics at that university. The unit was called Varsity Rifles. Until recently the organization was local, but another university petitioned for a chapter, which was granted, and then a program was put on to extend the organization. A few years ago it was renamed the Pershing Rifles in honor of its founder.

Y. W. to Entertain New Group Members

Former Commission Officers to Hold Steak Fry for New Officials

The newly appointed members of the sophomore commission of the YWCA will be entertained at a steak fry by former members of the commission at 5:30 p.m. tonight in Mechanical hall gardens.

The group is composed of 27 girls of the freshman class who have done outstanding work in the YWCA, and who will be sophomores next year. Representatives from all sorority and independent groups are selected by the retiring members. The basis on which the girls are picked is interest in YWCA work, and participation in association activities.

Announcers to Be Added to Station

A call for radio announcers for the University Extension Studio of WHAS was issued yesterday by Elmer C. Sulzer, studio director.

One or possibly two announcers will be added to the staff near the first of June, Mr. Sulzer said. The announcers selected will be expected to work most of the summer and for that reason should either live in or near Lexington, or should be employed locally. Those added during the summer will continue as regular members of the staff next fall.

Applicants should see Mr. Sulzer or Frank Burger, head announcer, as soon as possible.

Tennis Team Wins One, Loses Two On Southern Journey

The University varsity tennis team, coached by Prof. H. H. Downing, lost two, won one, and were rained out on three of six southern team encounters on a southern tour last week.

The Blue and White netmen were rained out at Tennessee and Seawance where matches were scheduled for Monday and Tuesday respectively. The University of Alabama took the Kentucky boys by a 5-0 score when the Alabama heat was too much for them. The doubles matches at Alabama were not played because of rain. On Thursday, the netmen, playing under the best conditions of the trip, defeated Auburn 7-2. Friday, they were rained out again at Georgia Tech which boasts one of the strongest teams in the South with Reese, intercollegiate southern champion, as their ranking number one man.

The team proved easy marks for the University of Georgia team on Saturday and went down on the short end of a 9-0 score.

Tomorrow afternoon, the varsity netmen meet the University of Illinois, whom they defeated last year 6-0. Friday they meet Berea who they defeated earlier in the season 7-2. On Thursday the freshman netters make their first appearance in a practice match with Asbury College.

Taylor, Beaumont Speak Over WHAS

"No person should prepare to enter the teaching profession unless he is in the upper 50 per cent of his class in high school and unless he is in the upper 50 per cent of the students at the University of Kentucky," declared Dr. William S. Taylor, Dean of the College of Education, when interviewed recently by Dr. Henri Beaumont, of the Psychology department, over radio station WHAS.

"In addition to having good native ability, he should have a good personality, liberal education, and an intimate knowledge of child psychology," Dean Taylor said.

The College of Education, according to Dean Taylor, is engaged in other work besides that of training teachers. The Bureau of School Service makes studies and surveys in the state in their public school program. In addition the bureau publishes a quarterly bulletin.

BIRD PAINTINGS EXHIBITED HERE

Rex Brasher's Printings of North American Birds Are Shown in University Library Foyer

Approximately 60 hand-colored photographs reproductions of Rex Brasher's paintings of North American birds, are on display in the main foyer of the University of Kentucky library, placed there through the courtesy of Miss Gailie Elkin of the Elkin-Herrings Interiors decorating shop. The display will be on exhibit for two weeks, and the public is invited to view the showing.

Rex Brasher, Chickadee Valley, Conn., is the son of Philip Marston Brasher, amateur ornithologist for whom the Brasher warbler was named, and has made 900 plates of North American birds, from which he has personally reproduced 90,000 prints. The 60 prints in the University of Kentucky library are some of the collection of 90,000 which have been hand tinted and reproduced by Brasher. Assistants have in some instances assisted in painting the background, but Mr. Brasher, has done the bird color reproductions from the original 900 plates himself.

The prints show variety of color, fine taste in design and are well worth while for their artistic alone, the hand coloring giving more perfect results than would have been obtainable through a four-color process of printed reproduction. The hand process also has permitted the use of permanent paper which process work would not allow, and assisted the artist in making them true to life, and as exact in proportion, markings and color as it was possible to obtain.

PUBLIC DEMANDS PROMPT ACTION ON PATMAN BILL

Telegrams Exceeding 150,000
Have Been Received by President and Senate
Favoring Bonus

COMPROMISE SOUGHT
BY SENATE LEADERS

Experts See No Danger As Inflationary Measure
Gains Popularity

Washington, May 13—(INS)—Rumors of a new administration effort to compromise the cash bonus issue spread through the capital today as an aroused public stormed the White House and Senate with telegraphic demands for enactment of the Patman Bill.

Officials estimated the tide of telegrams to President Roosevelt and Senators had passed the 150,000 mark for the last eight days. They reported a tremendous flood of messages pouring eastward in response to week-end radio appeals from bonus leaders, in support of the Patman measure.

The rumor of a new administration move toward compromising the issue arose out of the week-end of the President with Senator Joe T. Robinson, Senate floor leader, and Senator Pat Harrison (D) of Mississippi, head of the Senate finance committee. Harrison sponsored one previous compromise, which the Senate rejected in favor of the Vinson bill that later was discarded in favor of the Patman bill.

The Patman bill appeared to be gaining support in the Senate despite confidential polls which showed the President's expected veto would be sustained. There were numerous reports of "breaks" in administration ranks as a result of a series of statements in favor of its immediate enactment into law. Observers were unable to identify any Senators now ready to support the bill after having previously opposed it. (Continued on Page Four)

UNIVERSITY ROTC UNIT INSPECTED

Colonel J. E. Mort and Major Hiram Fry Conduct Annual Survey of Cadet Regiment

The annual War Department inspection of the ROTC regiment was held Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock on Stoll field. The inspectors were Colonel J. E. Mort of Columbus, Ohio, and Major Hiram Fry, who is now on duty with the Organized Reserves in Lexington.

The units were judged on the manner in which they drilled, the appearance of the regiment as a whole, and the morale. The purpose of the inspection was to determine whether or not the unit would remain a blue star unit. The regiment has held this distinction since 1931 and before that in the years 1928, 1927, and 1928.

A dinner was given for the inspectors by Scabbard and Blade Monday night at 6 p.m. Those attending were the members of Scabbard and Blade and their dates, and the following officers and their wives: Major B. E. Brewer, Captain I. C. Scudder, Captain Austin Triplett, Captain H. D. Scheibla, Lieutenant P. E. Sturgeon, and Lieutenant Criswell.

German Students Present Two New One Act Dramas

Music Is Furnished Between Acts by Little German Band

The players of the University German club, under the direction of A. E. Bigge, head of the German department, presented two one-act plays Saturday night at the University Training school.

The first, entitled "Fritz und Wiedler Fritz" concerned the arrival of a cousin to the household of a modern New York family. When he appeared it was evident that he was an uncouth person and the visit became very unsatisfactory. Later, however, a charming cultured gentleman appeared and it was discovered that the first guest was the cousin of the maid.

The cast was as follows:
Frau Konrad.....Louise Wilson
Emma.....Helen Frances Jones
Frieda.....Thelma Renner
Kathie.....Polly Keshelmer
Fritz Schmidt.....Dr. Walter Radden
(The wrong cousin)
Fritz Lehndor.....Paul Whitaker
(The right cousin)

J. Preston Bryant, accompanied by Lucille Byron, played violin selections during the intermission.

The second play, "Die Kleinen Verwandten," dealt with a family in Germany that was anxiously awaiting the arrival of the daughter's suitor. At this very inopportune moment, some "inferior relatives" arrived for a visit.

These relatives, the sister of the father and her new husband, refused to leave even though the suitor was expected to propose that night. When he arrived, their comments were such that he became embarrassed and started to leave. However, Ida, the daughter, made ready to leave with him and he proposed. The cast of this little intrigue is as follows:

Ida.....Mary Dantzer
(The daughter)
Frau Haessler.....Mrs. Frieda Latimer
Heinrich Haessler.....Dr. Daniel Hegeman
(The father)
Babette.....Fannie Herman
(The sister)
Josef Boholzer.....Karl Schneider
(Her husband)
Max Schmidt.....Frank Hord
(The suitor)

The Little German band, under the direction of Robert Griffith, furnished the music before the first curtain and after the last. The cast was presented to the audience at the end of the program in the library of the Training school. Punch and cakes were served. The guests were received by Miss Fannie Herman, president of the club, Dr. Bigge and other members of the club.

Activities During Summer Session Are Formulated

Frank Parker, Noted Discour,
Coffer Miller Players, to Give Programs

Performances by the Coffer Miller Players, nationally known comedy troupe, and Frank Parker, eminent discour, will be features of the extra-curricular program of the first term of the University summer school which begins June 10.

The players will appear at the University June 27, giving a performance at the convocation program in the morning, and another program in the evening. The plays have not been definitely decided on but "The Rivals," by Sheridan, and "The Merchant Gentleman," by Moliere are being considered.

Frank Parker will come to the University July 9 for two performances, one at convocation in the morning, and another that evening. Mr. Parker made his debut as a discour in Paris at the Edouard VII theatre in 1928, afterwards appearing in London and in most of the large cities of the United States.

The yearly program of teas, dances, music concerts, and picnics has also been planned for both sessions.

Summer school students will be admitted to the performances of the Coffer Miller Players and Frank Parker free of charge.

Louisville Male high school was second with 41 and 51-6 points, and Barbourville was third with 25 points.

The relay team was composed of German, Shepherd, McConnell, and Hellman.

A record in the 200 yard low hurdles, which was run for the first time this year, was set by Stark, Louisville Male, who covered this distance in 24.3 seconds.

Another record, not pertaining to the meet, was made when Dave Rogan, star freshman trackster, running an exhibition mile race, against time, established an unofficial record in the mile event of four minutes and 29 seconds, eclipsing six seconds from the former University of Kentucky track record. HORSE BREEDER GIVES ADDRESS

Speaker Discusses General
Horse and Mule Situation in United States

PROF. GOOD PRESIDES

Although as fortunately situated for raising work stock as light horses, Kentucky farmers are producing less than a third of their needs of horses and mules, declared M. Wayne Dinsmore, Chicago, secretary of the Horse and Mule Association of America, at the horse and mule program at the Kentucky Experiment station farm Friday, May 10.

Prof. E. S. Good, of the Experiment station presided, and introduced as speakers: Dr. W. W. Dimmock, head of the Department of Animal Pathology; Prof. D. J. Kays, of Ohio State University; Mr. Dinsmore; Col. T. J. Johnson of the U. S. Army Remount Service, Lexington and Mr. H. A. Berge, farm agent in Gallatin county, Ky. The multi-hitch demonstrations were conducted by Mr. Walter L. Bluck, farm agent in Clinton county, Ohio.

Reviewing the general horse and mule situation in the United States, Mr. Dinsmore pointed out that there is a shortage everywhere, with an increasing demand at higher prices, and a serious deficiency in the numbers of mares, stallions, and jacks.

Kentucky farmers, according to Mr. Dinsmore, are buying 20,000 to 25,000 head of horses and mules every year. Mules have been commanding as high as $700 a span this spring.

Speaking on the subject "Good Horses for the Farm and Market," Professor Kays used several horses to demonstrate good points, as he reviewed the qualities most desirable.

The work of the Army Remount Service, notably in the production of the half-blood, was reviewed by Colonel Johnson. This type, usually produced by crossing a thoroughbred stallion on a grade mare, makes a good farm horse as well as suitable material for artillery and cavalry service, he said.

THE LAST LAP

But two weeks remain until the close of the last semester of this school year. To me this period will be filled with encouragement; to others it will bring only failure and discouragement. A part of us will think only about the approaching holidays. To these few days that remain will be uncomfortable ones—ones in which we merely mark time while hating each day until it has run its course. However, the greater part of us will realize that only a short time remains to accomplish that which we have been putting off all year and we shall feel constrained to take advantage of these few short days which remain before us. Thus we shall have a real feeling of accomplishment by June.

There has been a tendency for many of us to forget the parent angle of the situation. We have come to believe that dating every night, "making" all the dances, being initiated into various organizations, and having a host of friends are the principal requirements of our college life. Although these must be given their fair share of importance, we must realize that the "folks back home" are judging this year by the grades which we receive in our various courses.

Throughout the first semester the freshmen could justify themselves to a certain extent in feeling that they had not become properly adjusted to college life. Inability to budget their time and the failure to recognize that continuous daily work is required to successfully complete a course was responsible for a number of disheartened undergraduates.

But that time is past. Those studenis who are "real" college material have by now realized what a college curriculum requires of them. Many parents, especially those of freshmen, are pondering whether or not they should send their "Billy" or "Betty" back to the University next year. This question will be answered to a considerable extent by what that son or daughter has accomplished this semester.

The upperclassmen, for the most part, have by this time a more balanced conception of their work. They need only remember that much can yet be done toward "making the grade."

Let us then all have a definite goal in view. Let us "hit in stride" that outside reading, finish up our term papers and theses, and hold ourselves in readiness for the "finals." Thus shall we feel justly proud of our accomplishments when we bring to a close our semester's work.

THE COLLEGIATE CYNIC

Abbe Ernest Dimmet, author of the "Art of Thinking" and other philosophical works, describes true cynicism as merely "self-confidence tainted by conceit or by the conviction that no one is better than one's self." Collegiate cynicism, on the other hand, is usually a concoction formulated from a more or less "light a Murad" attitude combined with a forced degree of pessimism. When measured by the standards of the world, these characteristics are of no distinct value in attaining success, but on the campus they seem to halo the youthful cynic's head, giving him a certain air or mark of distinction among students who are carefree, indolent, or even conscientiously earnest.

The campus "man-about-town" is commonly seen in the corner drug store, "coking," or in the beer gardens, "guzzling." There he sits dully for hours, squinting self-esteemedly through a veil of cigarette smoke while nonchalantly tapping ashes on the floor. He assumes an air of indifference to things material, attends classes as he chooses and prides himself on his large number of cuts and flunks, bringing them into his conversation to show his devil-may-care attitude.

Through his cynical and warped idea of living he pictures himself as one thoroughly experienced in all phases of this life and what it has to offer, and decides that it is hardly worth bothering about anyhow. Thus he drifts, living in a world of his own which he occasionally condescends to share with his fellow-classmate or someone of the fairer sex.

This individual, we are glad to say, is more the exception than the rule. However, we have many of them, over-present. Naturally they vary in degrees of intensity. Some are so "wrapped up" in themselves that they are decidedly beyond hope of recovery while others are just in the first semi-conscious state. Eventually, most of these, though not all, discover "what it's all about," only to wish that they had analyzed themselves in the beginning and spared themselves the work of "acting" in such a drama.

THE COLLEGE AND THE DEPRESSION

With regard to what colleges have learned from the depression, undergraduate editors have been unjustly accused of a "rather indeterminate and irresponsible flow of language," college authorities have been reproved for "temporizing with the present situation rather than meeting it constructively"; faculty members and trustee conservatives have been charged with sitting back twiddling their thumbs and waiting for the economic crisis to "blow over" and for their salaries to be raised again to the point of satiety. To the ordinary laymen these accusations are more or less justifiable; some others regard them much more skeptically.

Through a correspondence carried on with the presidents of the leading educational institutions of the nation one of the larger publishing houses of the country has found, however, that this was not the case, that undergraduates and college presidents have regarded the depression with as much seriousness as do congressmen, business men and others. Through the response received to this inquiry the following conclusions were drawn:

"That the college fully realizes that its interests are identical with those of the country at large—town and gown in the same leaky boat; that the college does not pull its full weight on the oars by sending a few 'brain trusters' to Washington to fabricate Utopias, but owes the community from which it emerges every last pound of intellectual energy and insight for the development of an electorate competent to meet the issues of the present; that the college has no desire to pamper itself in intellectual seclusion while the rest of us toil and sweat in a world gone wild; that the few academic exiles of the campus may be selfish in their indifference to progress as is misanthropy on the part of those who have fattened on industrial privilege; that the pride of scholarly tradition, which refuses to college youth an understanding of the present-day confusions into which they are walking the plank, may be just as reprehensible as the greed of 'capital' which these isolationists are so quick to condemn."

"In spite of local stringencies and enforced detours, the college, as primarily a teaching institution, can and will adapt its program to the needs of its clientele. The university, though not wholly free, of the same responsibility, must see also that it does not lose its own soul, independence, or integrity, in an effort to placate powerful though selfish interests. And this IS a problem!"—The Tiger, Clemson College.

CAN COLLEGE YOUTH TURN THE TIDE?

Internationalism has been "taking it on the chin." With European nations crawling farther within their shells of nationalism, our Senate rejecting the World Court, and French medical students more recently striking in protest of the presence of foreign students in their universities, the realization of the dreams of Wilson and others of a brotherhood of nations, which would minimize the importance of artificial boundaries and settle differences by other means than blood, seems more distant than ever.

What makes the picture a shade brighter, however, is the awakening of college youth to a new interest in international politics. The last few years have been marked by a mushroom growth of clubs engaged in the study of international problems throughout the country. Nation-wide organizations of students, including the National Student Federation of America and the Association of College Editors, have been unusually active in recent months in seeking to arouse American students through the college press to question ready-made doctrines of "patriotism" preached by the mighty Hearst and others.

Perhaps the cause of internationalism is not lost. Perhaps a minority of thinking college youths will be able to turn the tide within a few years. And perhaps the United States, in spite of her economic self-sufficiency, may again recognize a responsibility in the formulation of a system which will facilitate co-operation between the nations.—Concordian, Concordia College.

According to the Franklin and Marshall County weekly it takes the average college man four years to learn:

1. That women, gin and deans are not to be trusted.
2. That professors have and always will give the girls the better grades.
3. That you can't invite three girls to one dance without getting in trouble with at least two of them.
4. That sometime you'll have to go to work.

Hoi Polloi

By BOB HESS

Everything is status quo, and here we are back again, after a fine trip to Mammoth Cave with LeBus and Chauvet. We sponged all of the way to the cave—a night in the hotel at Horse Cave that is managed by that good looking alumnus, Bus Owen—a meal from that country school teacher, Norris Jolly, who was formerly the light of Alphagum Betty Price's life—and passes to the cave from that old U. K. heartbreaker, Joe Billy Mansfield. If we are gaining nothing else in the University, we are making friends that mean something.

Over in Glasgow, we ran into Darrell Harvey, a former K. A. luminary, and he certainly is in the pink.

Jolly took us all skating in a tobacco warehouse in Glasgow Saturday night, where LeBus got "loose as a goose." (Editor's Note: If "loose as a goose" is not acceptable, use heydeehyey).

To Helen Congleton and June Curd we will say that a cute little Glasgowette (one of Jolly's pupils, by the way) fell for Chauvet.

Flowers for Madame

The gardenias of the week go to one of the finest examples of feminine pulchritude that we have ever seen in Kentucky. The name is Miss Evelyn Carroll. She hails from that one-horse town called Georgetown by some people. She has been recommended by so many students that we feel that it is only right that she should be showered with gardenias. Incidentally, Evelyn seems to go for Basil Baker, and Basil seems to go for Kay Kennedy, and Kay seems to go for Labe Jackson. So what?

We accept Coffman's challenge, in last week's Kernel, to uncover some dirt about him. We know, positively, that Cameron V. Coffman was "pitching some woo" in the Botanical Gardens last Thursday night at exactly 9:05. Imagine this sweet, baby-faced, innocent student, who is nothing but a sheep in wolf's clothing, leading our sweet co-eds astray. Beware, co-eds! This guy Coffman is a snake.

An old sweetheart of Cam's, Miss Ruth Garnett, Huntington, seems to have more principle than passion, for she showed enough sense to throw Coffman over for a certain Mr. Jones. Coffman played sucker to Mr. and Mrs. Jones last week when he played the host to the tune of several dollars. The question is, "Is Coffman graduating to seduction among the married couples?"

Amensia

John "Garfish" Staples recently pinned a friend of Jean McCorkle, and he cannot remember the name of the pinnee. This is the fourth case of absent mindedness such as this that we have reported in the past six weeks. What manner of men are these, pinning girls and not being able to remember who they pinned.

Catch That Thief

Last Thursday at 2:30 in the morning, the Trideltis heard a little noise. What? Robbers? Mary Ellice Spratt nearly lost consciousness. Some of the girls yelled for help. One called the cops. When the foolish Greek letter girls found out that their imagination had been over working, there were five squad cars in front of their Linden Walk abode, and neighbors were standing around in pajamas. Some say that the incident was caused by a certain Tridelt who was burning the midnight oil writing a theme entitled "Imagination."

Spring Drops in Again

Ross Fox hung his Phitau pin on the personage of K. D. Amelia Denton. Nice goin'. Ross, Mr. Fox did not want this item published, because he said that every time that he might be seen with another girl, people will "make something of it."

After losses that dug deep into three pocketbooks, Ralph Kercheval, Bruce Davis, and Oyd Banks have given up their frequent trips to Churchill Downs. Kerch says that he can't pick the horses, but that he can pick the women.

Marriage or Divorce

Congratulations to youz guys in Pershing Rifles that went up to Columbus and showed those Yankees what real drilling is. We are told that, out of a clear sky, General Pershing walked up to Lizo Barbleux and introduced himself. After a short talk with our militaristic sponsor, the General said, "If there weren't so many people here I would kiss you." What is this power you have over the U. S. Army, Lizo?

Drippings from the Quill

Charlie Gates tells the boys that he goes home every week-end to sell insurance, but we know that he goes home to see a pretty little femme. Sam Potter likes to hold Richle Baker's hand. Lydia Tucker is wearing a ring that belongs to James Henning. This rumored that Wilma Taylor is pinned. Evelyn Carroll sells no-breaks for 50 cents. Polly Dawson calls Luther Egbert "Fishmawson" Fish, Casanova. "The Great Lover." Bob Sherman seems to think that Martha Ammerman is just about right. Bill Jacobs will help a guy out when it is raining. Mr. Bob Shannon, of the English Department, was seen reading a booklet named "A Dangerous Age for Men." Buck Ewing has a picture of Virginia Ferguson signed, "Je t'aime." The Tri Belas will hold their weekly meeting at the Tavern at 2:30 on Saturday. Phyllis Caskey has a twit on a clown in the Cole Brothers Circus. Ralph Kercheval, instead of listening to lectures, prints the initials B. G. Midge Wheeler met with an accident out at Hagan's. It seems that the birds fly too low out there. Two Kappas, and only two, showed up for an open house that the Sigma Chis had for the Kappas last Friday. Irb Kliner forgot what money and Southern hospitality was last Saturday. Frank Warnock has a twit on Eda May Kirk. Double Doyle called Martha Offert for a date Friday night and she said that she had to go skating. Bob Davis is making a play for Eleanor Steele.

JEST AMONG US

It may be all right for Mae West to have her men "come up sometime," but we believe if she marries them, she at least ought to make note of it.

"Send-a-Dame" letters have been started at the University of Southern California. But gosh, aren't the "Send-a-Dime" letters expensive enough?

Chandler charges Laffoon with an "administration of broken promises." We would rather call the effect of the sales tax, "broken nickels and dimes."

Byrd may have experienced many difficulties during his two years of polar seclusion, but at least he escaped the depression.

A Palm Beach suit seems to know what to do about wrinkles and musses.

Gets rid of them instinctively. It is almost its own valet.

The patented Palm Beach fabric is so resilient that it gives wrinkles the bounce. Hang a Palm Beach suit up at night and watch it shed 'em.

That's why Palm Beach fans always look trim, neat, prosperous and cool. And that's one reason Palm Beach upkeep is so easy to take.

An artist friend sends us this—

Gentlemen:

All my life I wanted to wear a necktie. But until Arrow shirts came along, the thing was simply impossible. I had a necktie. And I had a neck. But my shirts just wouldn't play ball.

I'd buy 'em too big, allowing for shrinkage, and they'd fool me. I'd buy 'em right, and they'd shrink two sizes in a heavy fog. Naturally I couldn't wear my tie with shirts like that!

One day I heard about Arrow Sanforized shirts--bought a few in my correct size--and now I am wearing a necktie--in one of the smoothest, best-fitting collars that ever graced my neck.

As to their durability, of course I can't say . . . I've only had my Arrow Trunks three years.

Sincerely,

GARDNER REA

Congratulations are in order for the fine manner in which Coach Bernie Shively and the Physical Education and Extension departments handled the annual interscholastic track and field meet out on Stoll field last Saturday. Favored as they were, with perfect track weather, the meet went off smoothly from start to finish.

DuPont Manual High school of Louisville showed a well-balanced team and scored in every event on the program. In the final count, they clearly demonstrated their superiority over the large field, outscoring their nearest rival, Male high, also of Louisville, almost two to one.

Bonnell of Henderson was high individual man of the day with 14 points, though he was closely pressed for the honor by Jackson of Barbourville with a total of 13 points. At the close of the afternoon, Bonnell made an attempt to set a new state mark in the pole vault, an event which he had won earlier in the day, with a vault of 10 feet 6 inches.

The bar was set at 11 feet for the first try and Bonnell cleared it easily. It was then raised to 11 feet 6 inches, and again he cleared the bar. When it was elevated to 12 feet, Bonnell had considerable trouble on his first two tries. On the third attempt he sailed up and over the crossbar, and the crowd began to cheer, but the clapping died immediately when on the way down his chest grazed the bar and knocked it from its precarious perch. If Bonnell had tried for the record mark earlier, when he was still fresh, he would doubtless have made it, but, as it was, he was worn out from the several events he had participated in, besides a number of heats before the finals.

Before we go any further, we would like to make a correction of an item that appeared here in the last issue. In discussing Sam Sternberg, we mentioned that he might be the first University man to make the major league baseball grade. It has been called to our attention that Irvine Jeffries, one of the best athletes ever to represent Kentucky, played for some time with the Chicago White Sox. Jeffries played football and baseball with the freshman teams of the University, but left school midway in his sophomore year.

As an added attraction at the high school track meet, Dave Rogan, the "mile machine" from Middlesboro, ran an exhibition during which he again broke the University record for the distance, traveling it in 4:29 this trip.

Rogan's first quarter mile was completed in .59, which is a terrific pace for that section of the mile. Glenn Cunningham usually runs the first quarter in approximately that time during one of his assaults on the existing mile mark.

This fast first quarter probably hurt Rogan's final time as he did not finish with his customary stretch "kick." However, the fact that he was running alone and had no previous opportunity to test his pacing, probably accounts for his overextending himself at the start.

At any rate, his 4:29 mile was plenty fast and gave the crowd something to talk about. This corner has announced before, and continues to announce, that Rogan will be one of the outstanding milers of the South and probably of the country if he continues to improve as he has done thus far.

Coach H. H. Downing is back at his desk and Jay Lucian and the members of the tennis team are back beating the books for the final exams once more, after an eight day jaunt through the "Sunny South." We understand, however, that the South was not so sunny for a few days and this fact necessitated the cancellation of the matches with Tennessee and Seawance, Auburn, Georgia, Georgia Tech and Alabama were met during the tour.

The team brought back glowing reports of the prowess of the Georgia Tech team. Reece, playing at number 1 for the Tech team, is ranked third in the intercollegiate rankings by virtue of his gaining the semi-finals of the national intercollegiate tournament last season. Kentucky's team, after seeing Reece perform, expect that he will win the intercollegiate title this year.

At Auburn and Alabama, the thermometer rose to 94 degrees in the shade and no telling what it was in the sun. The Kentucky tourists returned to Lexington with varying degrees of sunburn as a memento of the trip.

Manual High Is Track Meet Winner

the state high school record in the mile run, while attending Middlesboro High school. Bonnell, performing with the Barrett Manual High school, Henderson, received the cup as high point man of the meet. He scored a first, second, third and fourth, for a total of 14 points. Bonnell won the pole vault event by clearing the bar at 10 feet, six inches, but at the close of the meet, in an exhibition effort to break the state record he vaulted a height of 11 feet, six inches, six inches short of the record.

Saddler, jumping under the colors of Summer Shade high school, lacked one-quarter inch of equaling the state record in the high jump. He won this event with a height of five feet 11 inches. The record was set by Best last year at a height of six feet, one-half inch.

The standings of the teams entered follows:

DuPont Manual	72
Louisville Male	41 5-6
Barbourville	25
Barrett Manual (Henderson)	24 1-6
Holmes High (Covington)	19
Henry Clay (Lexington)	15
Middlesboro	12 1-2

Summer Shade	7 1-2

Public Requests Immediate Action

posed it, but the rumors persisted. The fact that a number of highly responsible public officials endorsed the Patman Bill over the week-end seemed to lit behind these rumors. They began when Marriner S. Ecles, Governor of the Federal Reserve Board, announced an issue of treasury notes to pay the bonus would be no more inflationary than the issue of a like amount of Government bonds. Then, Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the RFC declared it would be a god thing for business if the bonus issue were settled now.

These statements came after Senator McAdoo (D) of California, a wartime Secretary of the Treasury, declared enactment of the Patman Bill would help business and would not damage the Government's credit. He laughed at charges the bill was inflationary and would lead to printing press money.

Finally, Senator Borah (R) of Idaho, declared Great Britain had used the principle of the Patman Bill to help refund its public debt a few years ago. He quoted Sir Reginald McKenna, "one of the great bankers of the world," as saying the policy was successful and resulting in lifting price levels throughout England.

The Patman Bill meanwhile was kept pending in the Senate on a technicality, although it was passed last Tuesday. Its Senate sponsors refused to release it until they are confident they have won over every possible vote to over-ride the President's expected veto.

G-E Campus News

SYNTHETIC SUNLIGHT

THE people whose apartments faced the lower levels of the ventilating shafts in a 14-story New York apartment house had long ago given up the hope that direct sunlight would enter their windows. Imagine their astonishment one morning not long ago to find light—lots of it—streaming in. When they looked, they found not the sun, but 18 of the sun's able little imitators—General Electric floodlights. They had been mounted on the ninth-floor level.

The engineers were thoughtful of the tenants' feelings. For when the switch is thrown no sudden glare of light paralyzes unaccustomed householders in the act of brushing their teeth or doing setting up exercises, pastimes which were formerly cloaked in intimate gloom. A fully automatic synchronous-motor time switch actuates a dimmer, and the floodlights do not attain full brilliancy for 15 minutes.

GROANING RAILS

A FEW weeks ago, the rails between Schenectady and Benning, D. C., groaned under what is believed to be the heaviest load ever transported on a single car. The load consisted of the generator shaft, rotor, and poles for a General Electric frequency converter set being installed at the plant of the Potomac Electric Light and Power Company to deliver 25-cycle, single-phase power to the Pennsylvania Railroad. The total weight on the rails was 471,300 pounds.

Because of weight and clearance requirements, however, the route of the shipment was round about. A check of practically every foot of the way was made to determine if temporary obstructions could be removed to allow the load to pass. From Schenectady to Wilkes-Barre, Pa., the car traveled on the Delaware & Hudson. From Wilkes-Barre, the car was sent to Hagerstown, Md., on the Pennsylvania Railroad, where it was turned over to the Western Maryland Railroad. After an extensive detour, it was delivered back to the Pennsylvania on its main line just south of the Baltimore tunnels, which were the principal reasons for the complicated routing. From there it was carried directly to the power company's siding in the District of Columbia.

FISH LIFE SAVER

THE people in the New York Aquarium were very unhappy. Many of their rare fish were dying of a mysterious malady. An investigation showed that the water pumped into the tanks contained contaminating metal salts, and that these salts came from the metal pumps in the system.

They appealed to the H. A. Smith Pump & Motor Company for help. Mr. Smith began testing all the nonmetallic substances available for making pumps. He tried 14 materials and found that General Electric Textolite was the only one that would prevent this pollution of the water and at the same time make a satisfactory pump.

Engineers of the General Electric Plastics Department were called in, and a new pump was designed, using five different grades of Textolite. The pump was so constructed that no water can come into contact with metal.

—for that better taste and fragrant aroma

Turkish tobacco leaf is so tiny that each of these bales contains from 70 to 80 thousand leaves.

But there's another and greater difference—Turkish is the most spicy and aromatic tobacco in the world.

We have Chesterfield buyers in all the tobacco markets of Turkey and Greece, including Xanthi, Cavalla, Smyrna and Samsoun.

And when you blend and cross-blend aromatic Turkish tobacco with mild ripe home-grown tobaccos as we do in Chesterfield

—you have a milder cigarette, a better-tasting cigarette.
